

Oxford and Cambridge Musical Club

Concert 1238½

Wednesday, May 21st, 1969, at 7.30 p.m.

In the Joint Staff Common Room, University College, Gower Street, W.C.1

A Club Evening of Planned Informality, being the first Experimental

Concert for all Members.

The music is likely to include little Latin and less Greek (possibly a Klephtiko and Skalkottas?)
but Leonard Bernstein may well join the company of German 'B'-s.

Members and their guests are invited to bring their voices and portable instruments. The programme - and the possibility of anyone being able to participate in it - must, of necessity, remain entirely fortuitous but the Concert organiser would be very interested to learn of any declaration of intent.
